Project Description	Violence against women is widespread in the Ukraine with nearly 45 per cent of women experiencing violence at least once in their lifetime. Research shows that 56 per cent of Ukrainian women who survived violence in their childhood experience violence again after the age of 18.

The project implemented by the Ukrainian Women's Fund will mobilize youth to take a stand against violence by developing capacity and building commitment among young women and girl-leaders. In the first phase of the project, 25 girl leaders will be selected from nine regions to take part in a training-of-trainers on leadership and violence against women and girls. As a result of this training, girls will create a strategy of joint actions which will be implemented during the second stage of the project, in which awareness-raising and outreach activities will be coordinated and peer-to-peer support groups established to provide girls at high risk with referrals to services. In the third stage, a unified model of work will be developed with contributions from young girl leaders and young girl survivors of violence which will be presented to the Ministry of Social Policy for endorsement as a means to strengthen referral systems and improve the quality of available support services.
